FOR

One Penny, Two pence, or Three pence.

To the End of the Year 1709.

Alphabetically Digested;

And with the Names of the Authors, and the Places where they were Preached.

By John Smith.

A Collection of the most useful and instructive Sermons, that have been published in Great Britain, for the improving of the Christian Religion, and the bettering of the Manners of the People. By several famous Divines, who have been distinguished by their Piety, and their Learning. This Collection is now published, and is sold by the Author, at the Sign of the Crown, in the Strand.

COLLECTOR

WILLIAM HARRIS, Book-Seller,

At the Sign of the Crown, in the Strand, near the Temple Church. Where may be seen a Catalogue of the several Sermons, and the Names of the Authors, and the Places where they were Preached. Also a List of the several Sermons, and the Names of the Authors, and the Places where they were Preached. This Catalogue is now published, and is sold by the Author, at the Sign of the Crown, in the Strand.

P R E F A C E.

HAVING formerly compiled a Catalogue of all such useful Tracts as were necessary to be given away for the Instruction of the Poor and Ignorant, by Charitable and Well-dispos'd Persons; with the Prices prefix'd to each, and what per 100. to be allow'd to those generous and liberal Persons, who buy them to dispose of to Charitable Uses: It had so good an Effect, that I may presume to say, it was the Occasion of some Hundred Thousands of the Books, therein-mention'd, to be given both in Town and Country, by the Religious of both Sexes, for the promoting of true Piety and Devotion, which is now added to this present Performance.

Of late Years, it hath been very customary to Sell such Sermons, as have been Preached by our most Eminent and Celebrated Divines (as well Bishops as others) upon Publick and Solemn Occasions, for the price of one Penny; which always before were sold for six Pence each; by which Means, the Poor that are well-inclin'd, are capable of purchasing such Sermons as best please them, as well as the Rich, without impoverishing or streightning either themselves or Families.

All Sermons are design'd for the Benefit and Advantage of the Poor as well as Rich; and by this Means, many People of very mean Circumstances, as to their Affairs in this World, have supply'd their Families with very many excellent, practical, and profitable Discourses; whereas formerly, if the most Learned and Pious Prelate, or any other very Famous and Celebrated Divine, preached a Sermon upon any Publick Occasion, tho' it met with a general Commendation and Applause, it was well, if five Hundred of them were actually sold and dispos'd of; whereas now, they are commonly dispers'd into Five, and often into ten Thousand Families, of so general and extensive Use has their Cheapness made them.

Now many Persons, who are very desirous to purchase such Sermons, not knowing where to procure them, I thought I might do an acceptable piece of Service to the Publick, by exhibiting a compleat Catalogue of all those that are already Printed. Their Texts: Upon what Occasion Preach'd; and before whom; on what Day, and in what Year. Which I have here perform'd Alphabetically, that whosoever is desirous to have any Sermon preached by such a particular Person, may see the same at the first View, or all that have been already preach'd by him. As for those that for the future shall successively come out, I shall constantly insert them in a written Catalogue, in the same Method, as this in Print, for Gentlemen to have Recourse to.

I shall always have a competent Number of each Sermon here mentioned, that all Persons that have any Occasion for them, may be furnished with them by,

Their Humble Servant,

Will. Hawes.

All the most useful Treatises lately Published, for the promoting of Christian Knowledge and Practice, in Persons of all Conditions and Stations whatsoever.

W Hereas several Pious, Generous, and Well-disposed Persons, of both Sexes, out of an inward Principle of Charity and Humanity, and for promoting Christian Piety and Virtue, for the Good of the Poor and Needy, have given away many Thousands of the Books herein mentioned: which we hope, by the Blessing of God, hath in a great Measure answered their pious Intentions. It has encouraged me to make a new, and perfect Catalogue of the said Books, that all Persons so disposed, may know not only what Books are proper, but their just and lowest Prizes, either single, or by the Hundred.
